

Language Identification Organizer

Listen closely and check off each sentence or partial sentence as you hear it.

- people might be working just 15 hours a week.
- That's over a hundred hours a week.
- she works 50 hours a week - actually has a little trouble taking time off.
- over time, thanks to machines and technology and new ideas, people get more productive.
- Today, six decades later, we work 34 hours a week
- That's enough money to live your entire life in wealth and just never work a day.
- earning more money can make it harder to take time off.
- The better you are at your job, the harder it can be to not do it.
- Maynard, of course, died from working too hard.
- She spent a lot of time trying to protect him from himself and would stop him doing things.
- He liked working.